MTI Home Video's Kiss of the Vampire Jan. 6

Remember when Bela Lugosi had a dark and dingy castle and didn't have to worry terribly much about intruders. It was a simple life for a lonely vampire. Ah, those were the days!

In actor-turned-director Joe Tornatore's Jan. 6 debut of Kiss of the Vampire from MTI Home Video — the launch title for their 2009 DVD product year — vampire Alex Stone (Daniel Goddard — Dream Warrior, and as Dar in the BeastMaster TV series) would also like the simple life. But not as a vampire!

He'd like to put his bloodsucking days behind him and take a long, leisurely walk on a sunny beach with the new love of his life, Estelle (Katherine Hawkes — Keeper of the Past, Portal and who also wrote and co-produced Kiss of the Vampire). However, his clan members count on him to keep things together (they can be rather messy after a feeding), the hoped-for cure to be found through Estelle's father at the mysterious Price Foundation is not what it seems and then there are those nasty vampire hunters.

And what of the mysterious and all-powerful Illuminati led by the MTI Continued megalomaniac Victor Price (Eric Etebari — Cellular, Bare Knuckles)? What are his plans for Alex and Estelle? Yes, the simple life (and death) of vampires of yesteryear certainly has its merits!

Also on the January release schedule from Miami-based MTI Home Video is the Jan. 27 arrival of director Ross Boyask's tale of revenge, 10 Dead Men. Ryan (Brendan Carr — Rise of the Footsoldier) led the life of a stone cold killer. A henchman, if you will, who was just a cog in the wheel of a British crime syndicate until the day he walked away from it all. An enforcer — a kill on demand machine.

In this body-count suspense thriller we quickly learn that the only way for Ryan to truly be free of his past is to literally kill his way out. As the title implies, it will take at least ten dead bodies to reach his salvation ... so let's get it on!
