Successful real estate developer, George Barron (Cyrus) attends his 25th high school reunion without his wife, Pamela (Locklear). He quickly greets the adolescent life he once had when he finds his old teenage band playing on stage. They pull him on stage and it feels like he never stopped playing with them. Later that evening they convince him to come to a rehearsal. When the band's first performance proves successful, it leads to a last minute booking to open for a reunion tour. His decision to play brings some personal satisfaction, but Pamela is not enthusiastic and the pressures of his business and marriage continue to mount. His Mother (Neal), in a retirement home, encourages him to enjoy life. Faced with a tough decision, where dreams collide with life, he must consider the effects on his marriage, his daughter (Rulin) and his business.

The film was written, directed and produced by Jim Amatulli (Artworks, starring Virginia Madsen), with Eric Abrahamson (Undercover Angel) and Jonathan McHugh (Crossroads) also producing.
